

The farm journal of the Holt family of Coolavacoose, Carbury, County Kildare, 1798-1879

LESLEY WHITESIDE

This journal of a middle-size tenant farmer, a rare survivor from nineteenth-century Ireland, is in the possession of the Holt family of Coolavacoose, Carbury, County Kildare. Neither a personal diary nor a full account book, it mostly records expenditure on labourers on the Holts' farm at Coolavacoose but also features recipes for animal cures and notes relating to the family. The journal is incomplete and entries are written randomly throughout, interspersed among the pages of an eighteenth-century Dublin merchant's account book, with which there is no discernible connection. The first entry dates from 1798 and the last from 1879, after which entries relate only to births, marriages and deaths within the family. There are no entries for the years 1836-55 but it is known that some pages are missing

My introduction to the journal, published in the Kildare Archaeological Society Journal, xxiii (2021), pp 194-209, highlights the wealth of insights and details of farming, rural life and financial transactions recorded in this source that social, economic, agricultural, local and family historians will find useful.

For stocking in the heels, take 2 handfuls of salt, 2 quarts of urine, 4 ounces of soap and boil them and rub them every day.

For the cold, 2oz of aniseed powder, 2oz of liquorice powder, 1oz of elocon pain powder [mometasone furoate powder, a corticosteroid used for skin conditions such as rashes and eczema; now prescribed as an ointment.] all incorporated together

For running in the heels, take rye flour and urine or ale, make a poultice of them with a bit of butter, renew it for 4 days, then take rosemary, sage and thyme, of each one small handful, boil them on one gallon of water. When boiled, strain off the clear and add thereto ½oz of blue vitriol [copper sulphate; used as a fungicide and for treating copper deficiency in plants] ½oz green vitriol [iron sulphate; used to treat iron deficiency in plants] 1oz white vitriol [zinc sulphate; used for preserving skins and wood] 2oz alum [used for pickling and tanning leather] all in fine powder, one naggin of this liquor to the place every day.

A cure for the black leg
Take savanane
and rue centaury and feverfew, each a small
handful of them,
garlic and pound them together, open the place afflicted and put them into it and shake a handful of salt on it
and tie it up.

For to make a horse
feed, take felid acid in a bottle and rub a little of it to his teeth with your finger.

A cure for the
worms in a horse 1 quart of new milk, one handful of sut, 3 or 4 heads of garlic pounded.

A cure for the pesing of blood
2 quarts of water
~~1 oz of tobacco~~ [struck out] boiled into one. Before it is boiled, put half a quarter of tobacco in it and half a naggin of the spirits of turpentine in it when boiled
and drench the beast with it.

A wash for sheep's feet

1 pint of vinegar
£0-0-4 worth of blue stone £0-0-1 worth of copperas
1 teaspoon of turpentine

Horse ointment

Take 4oz resin
3oz beeswax
½lb hog's lard
6oz common turpentine.
Dissolve them
in a pipkin with a gentle heat; then add 2oz of fine powder
of verdigris. Stir them together with a stick and strain the whole through a coarse cloth.
Set it aside to cool for use.

The right-hand margin of the bottom half of the page is worn away]

Purge for a horse

1oz aloes
2 drams rhubarb

4 drops oil of min[t]
made into a ball
with honey.

Cordial for a horse

If your horse travels faintly, give him a pint of warn ale with an ounce of diap[ente] in it. Diapente will comf[ort] his bowels, drive out cold [and] wind and may cause him [to] carry his food longer.

[Diapente is composed of gentian root, bay berries, bay leaves, birthwort, mint and myrrh.]

 tobacco water 16 gallons sublimate 8oz
 sal ammoniac 4oz
 white copperas 2oz
 hellebore 2oz
 saltpetre 4oz
 arsenic 2oz
 salt 1 quart

Steep the sublimate and sal ammoniac for a while in as much cold water as will cover them.
 Then pour on boiling water to dissolve but they must be pounded before they are steeped dissolved.
 1 wine bottle to each sheep.
 If the water is required very strong to kill scab 16oz of sublimate
 may be used but it must be applied cautiously and less of it will do.
 If the weather is frosty, keep the sheep in a house the night after dressing.

Crib to prevent a horse from biting himself

about 10 sticks 17 or 18 inches long according to size
and about an inch thick

[There follows a printed piece.:

NEMO has—1. A two-and-a-half year old colt with as swelling in the hock joint inside running down by the curb vein to below the horn. It first appeared 5 months ago. 2. A horse trained, with a puff above the pastern of the near fore leg.

1. Put him in the stable and feed him for 48 hours on cold bran mashes only. During this time hand-rub the legs frequently. At the end of it give a small aloetic ball. Afterwards give every day, mixed in a small seed of oats, or in a bran mash, 1dr of powdered sulphate of iron. Give regular exercise daily.
2. Rub into the puff the mixture of equal parts of bin iodide of mercury ointment and fresh lard for four days once daily, after fomenting.

Editor: Mercury II iodide is used in veterinary medicine to treat bone spurs, bursal enlargements and blisters.]

To remove warts from a horse ½oz oil of vitriol poured on 1oz of hog's lard until dissolved Let it settle before using, then apply with a feather or stick round [worn away] neck of the wart once or twice.
